Welcome to the World of C.B.

Breaker — Breaker — Read All About It

What's the biggest communication explosion since newspaper, since radio, since T.V.? It's that "Japanese toy, that trucker's joy that everybody calls - C.B."

Picture to yourself a short-term Rip Van Winkle. He's been asleep for only two years, not 20. He awakens in an auto with the CB turned on and hears:

"This here's Monkeyman Mac . . . I got the front door . . . No Smokeys in sight."

Rip would flip. He might wonder. "How long have I been asleep? It must be years! I hear some words of English but - but - but the language has changed!"

CB has a language, or a slanguage, of its own. Everyone speaks in code. You'd better learn it or you'll be laughed off the channels. Also, you'll be more able to understand your 1976-77 Yearbook!

"Intelligence appears to be the only thing that enables man to get along without education.

Education appears to be the only thing that enables a man to get along without the use of his intelligence." —

Albert E. Wiggam

Science

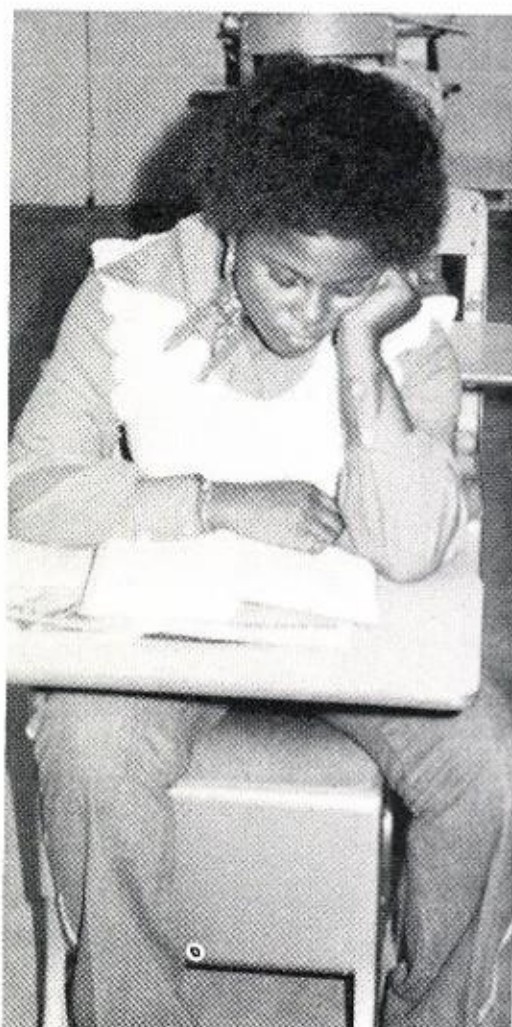

Miguel de Cervantes said, "Experience is the universal Mother of Sciences." He must have been eavesdropping on room 102 at the beginning of the year! From experience we learned many things QUICKLY!

1. Don't stick your fingers in the gerbil cage; he's vicious.
2. H_2S smells like the paper mill on a rainy day and will drive 4th period English class to the library.
3. Pyrex means fire resistant, not break resistant!

So, as we "move on," we live learn, though at times we wonder if are succeeding at either.

A likely excuse for playing with fire.

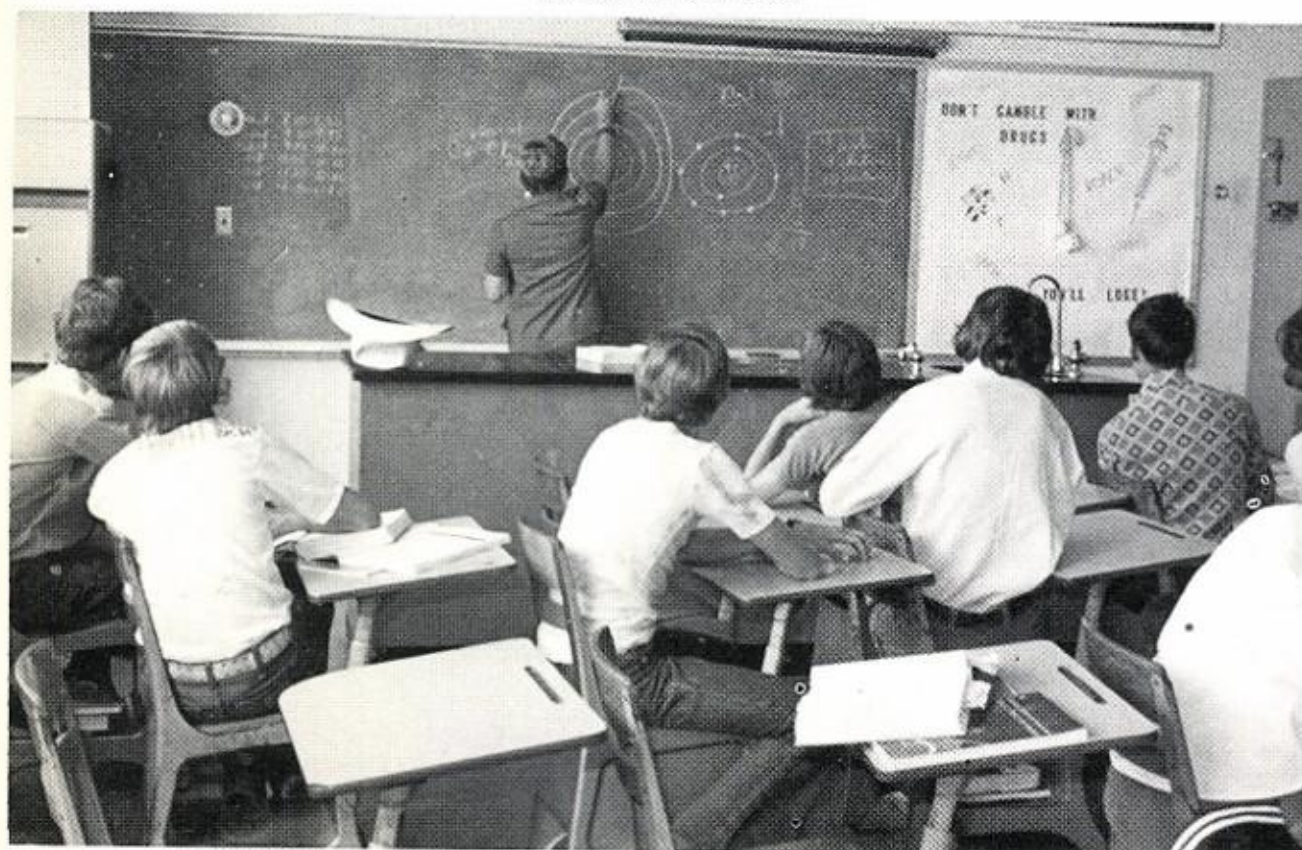

$E=mc$ WHAT?

There must be an easier way.

The wonder of it all!

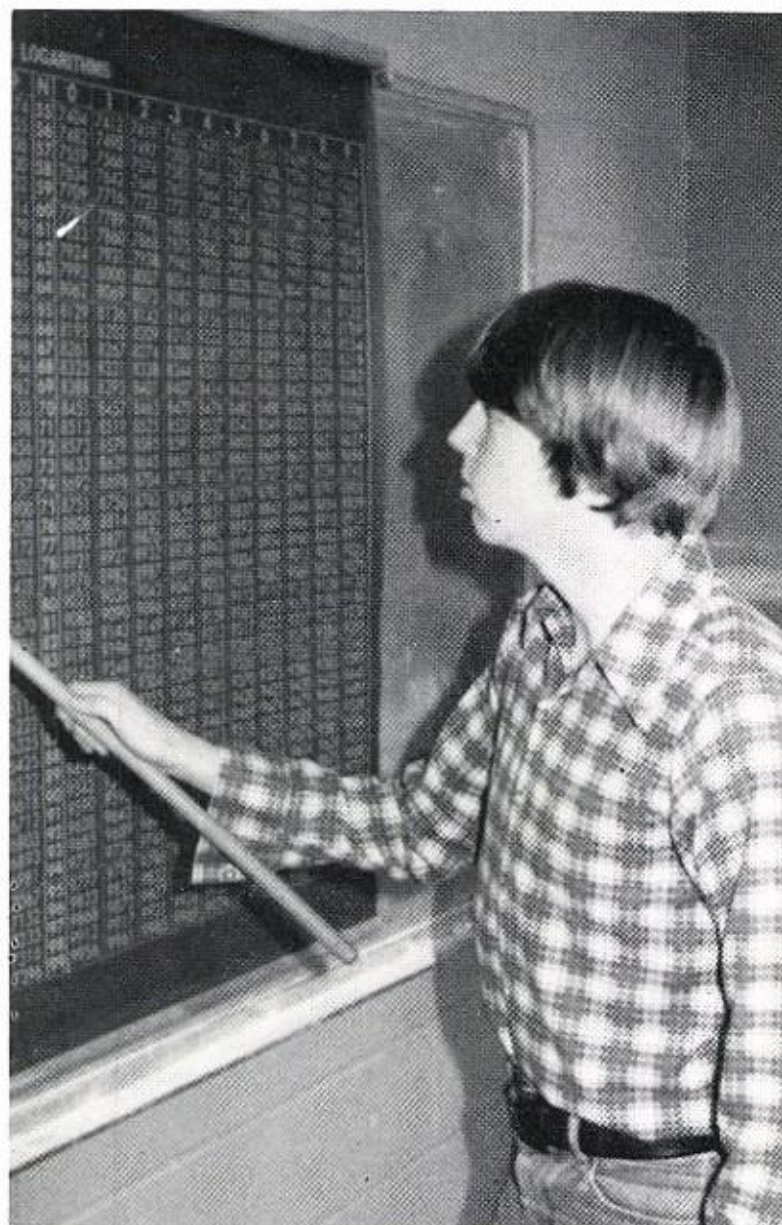

Accuracy!! Precision!!

MATH

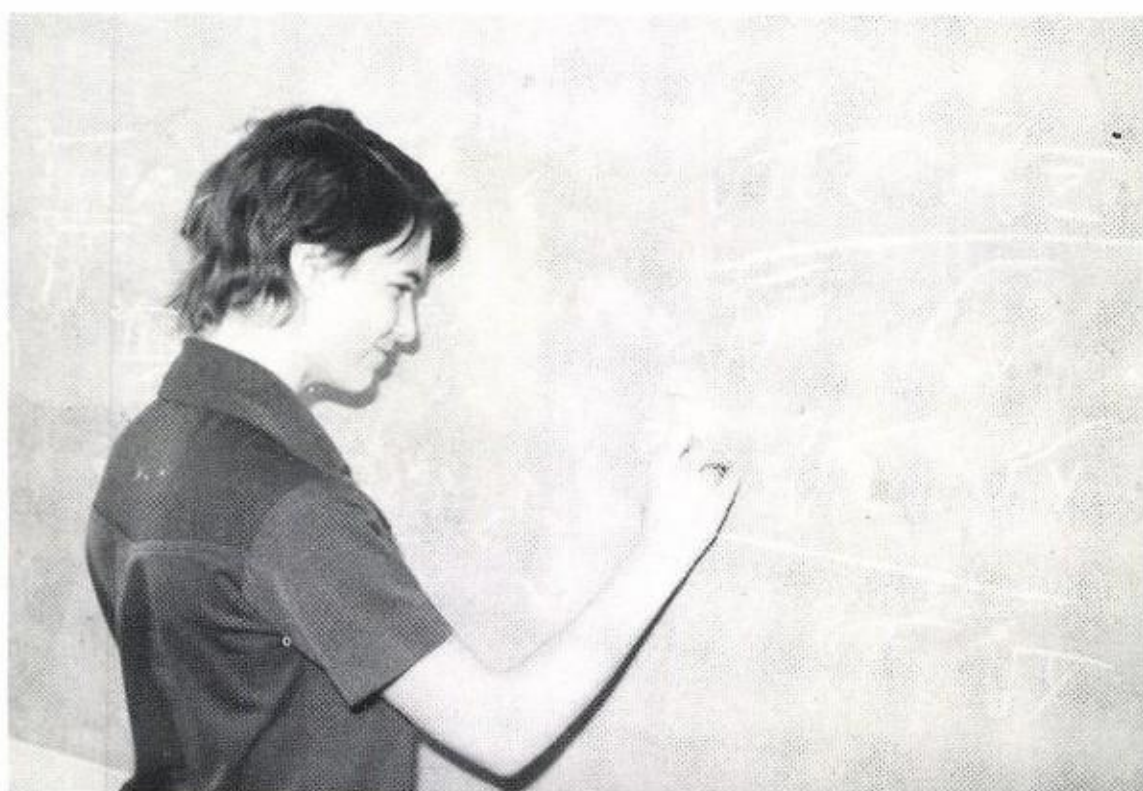

No, Randy, those aren't pretty girls' telephone numbers.

This year's math classes were full of surprises. Geometry students were surprised that triangles could do so much, Algebra classes argued over x's and y's, and analysis students cried! Gene was especially surprised the day that, during Mrs. Baker's absence, he was suddenly whapped on the head by a flying movie screen. We learned a lot through experience, too. Some students were so enthused with their new calculators that they dropped them daily for an excuse to dissect them and probe through their many tiny circuits. But, through it all we managed to convince Mrs. Baker to maintain her sanity and control her frustrations . . . and anger . . . and "excitement."

Be careful, Donald. That's a toughy!

Beth goes wild at the chalk board.

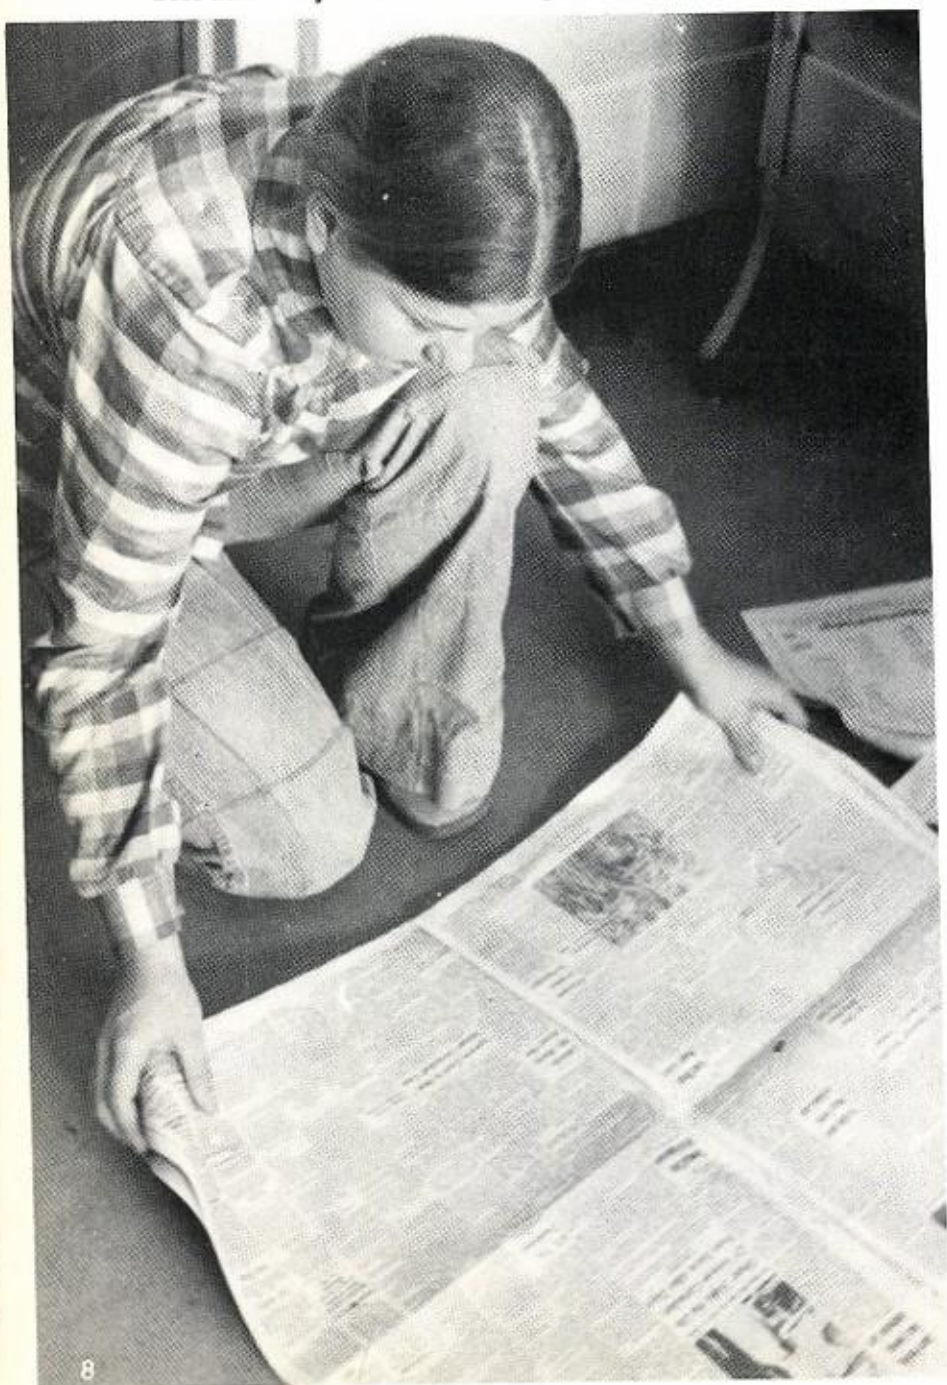

That's what Mrs. Baker thinks!!

Social Studies

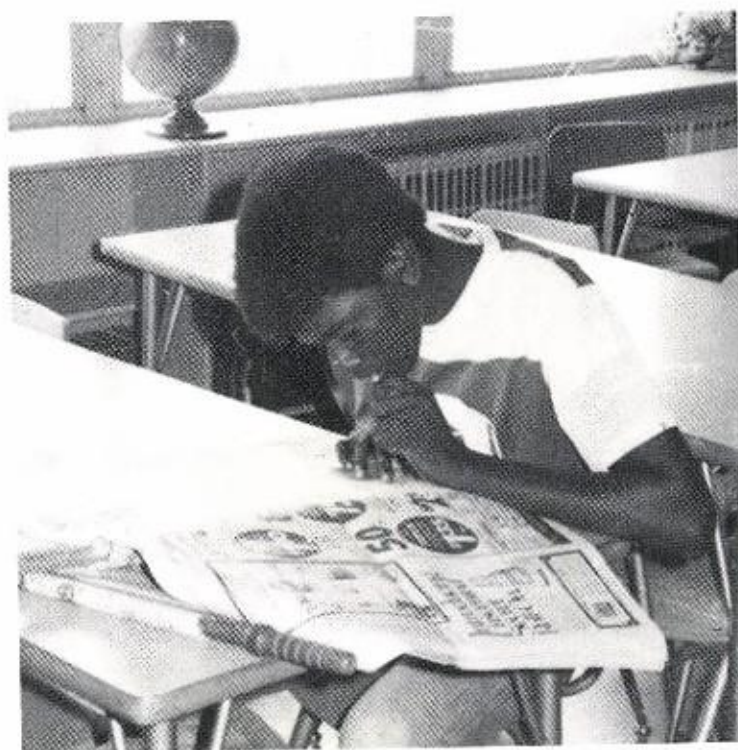

Social Studies, probably the broadest subject taught at F.H.S., includes many different branches such as geography, problems of democracy, world history, American history, and advanced American government. Social Studies provide students with a better understanding of the world around them, the people in that world, and their relationship to others and themselves. Learning the capital of Australia and the method of choosing the American President are just two of the almost unlimited areas of study. If a student is asked for a definition of a "lame duck" and his answer is "a bird with a crutch", then Coach Freeze and Mr. Frazier will know how far their lectures have been going.

Lori and Larry search for the right current event.

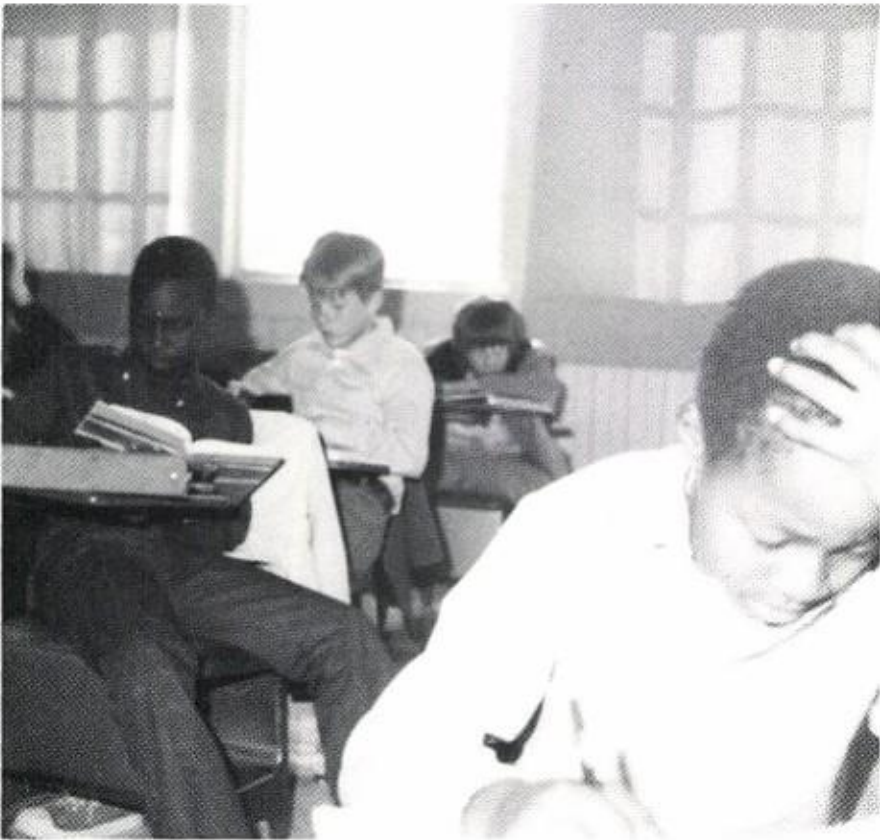

Is Martha studying those geographic features or planning her Mexican vacation?

Louise and Evelyn find study time essential.

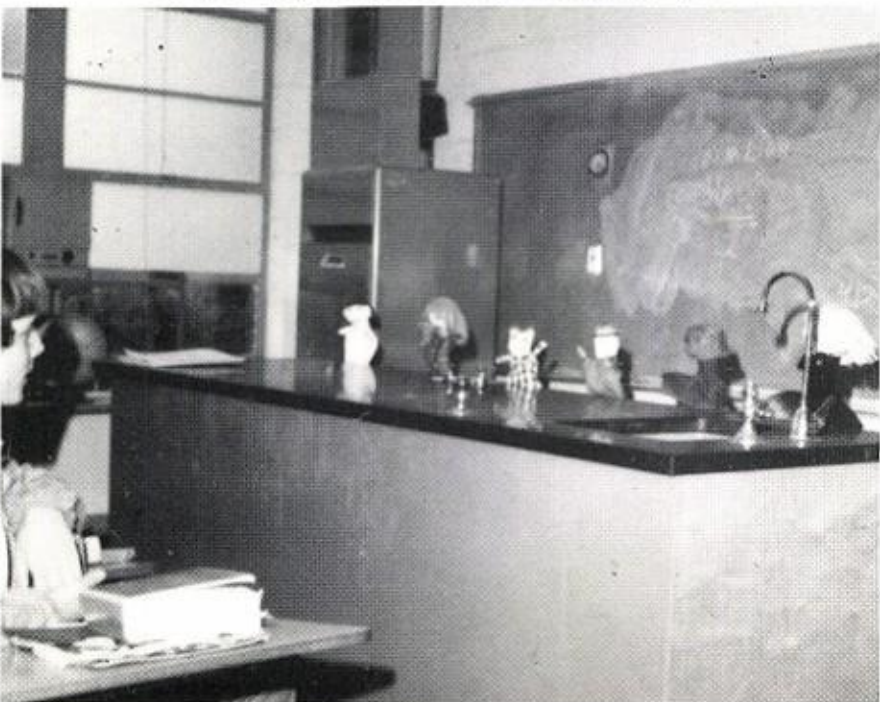

The library stays full during term paper week.

It's hard to decide between an adjective or an adverb.

Dean enjoys the Julius Caesar puppet show.

Language

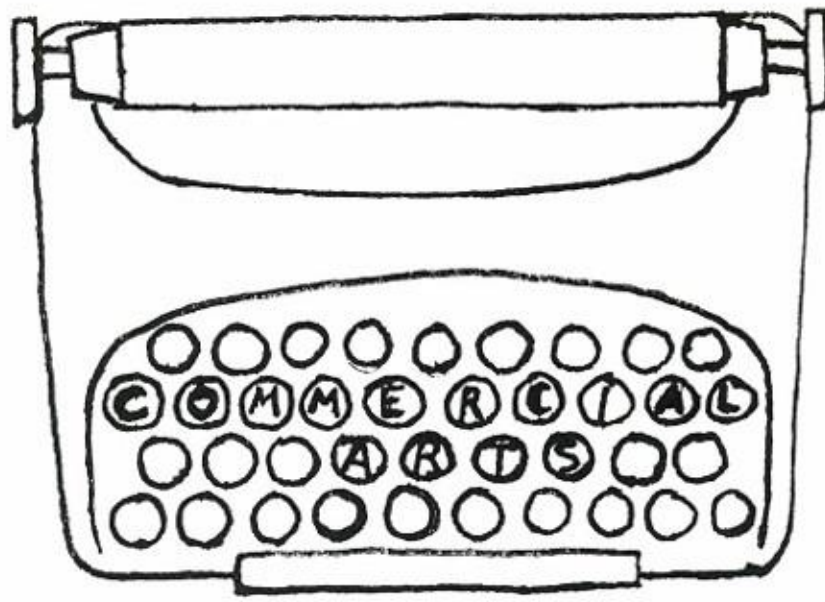

Officially, Spanish is the only foreign language offered at F.H.S., however, many students claim that there are three others - Greek, English, and C.B. A few are working at Spanish, several appear to have mastered English, and one group (C.B. owners) know nothing but C.B. lingo, but many are more like casca - it's ALL GREEK to them.

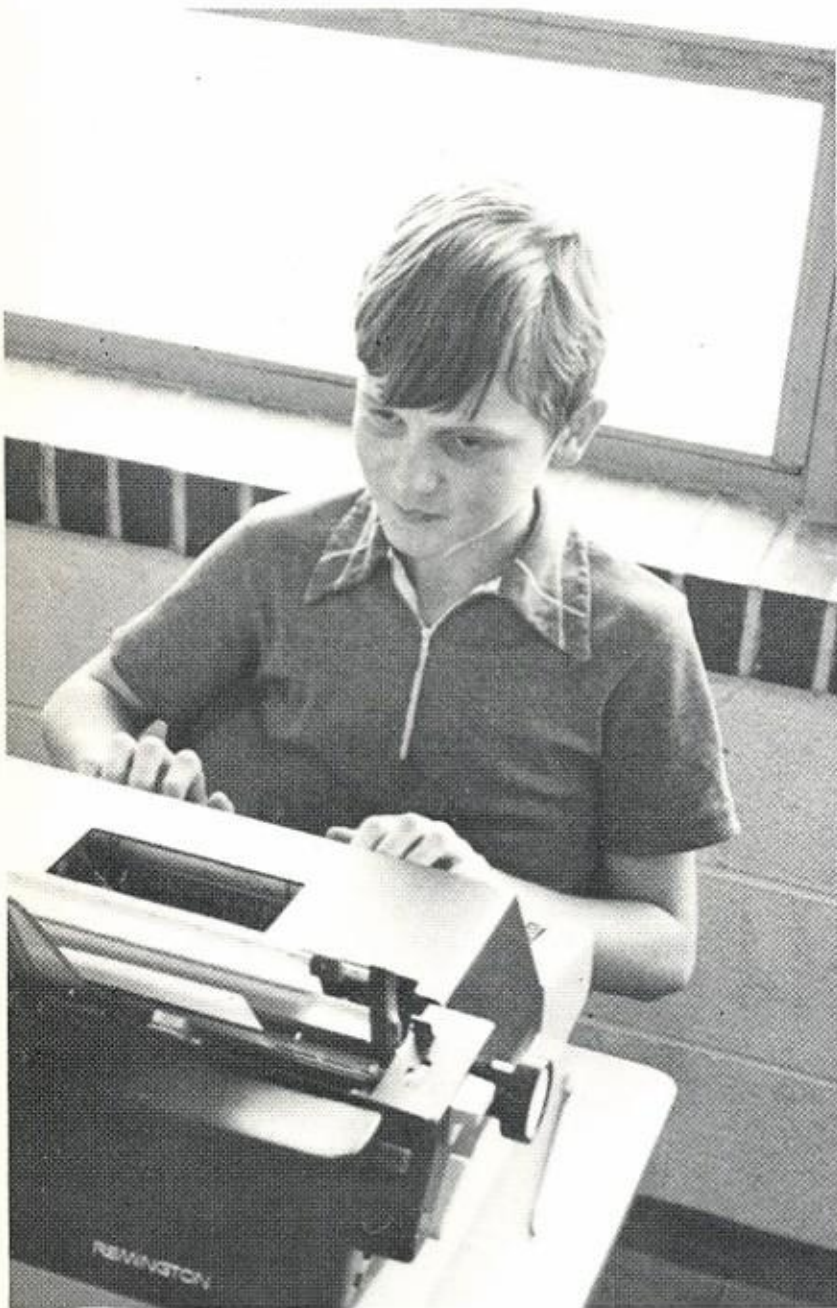

¡ Las Muchachas son muy aplicodas! The girls are working hard.

¿ Le Gesta el espanol, Evelyn? Do you enjoy Spanish, Evelyn?

Bobby finds ASDFJKL; amusing.

Typing to music makes class more enjoyable.

Mrs. Winfrey and the "Typettes."

When asked what Commercial Arts meant, Mrs. Winfrey stated that it was the eye to the future, or perhaps a world of dreams. In our school the courses offered toward either students' future or their dreams include typing, shorthand, office practice, and accounting.

The two Lisa's try to hit the same note.

Fine Arts

According to Mrs. Walters, academic classes are getting more exciting. Students now have a chance to express themselves through the humanities: art, theatre, and music.

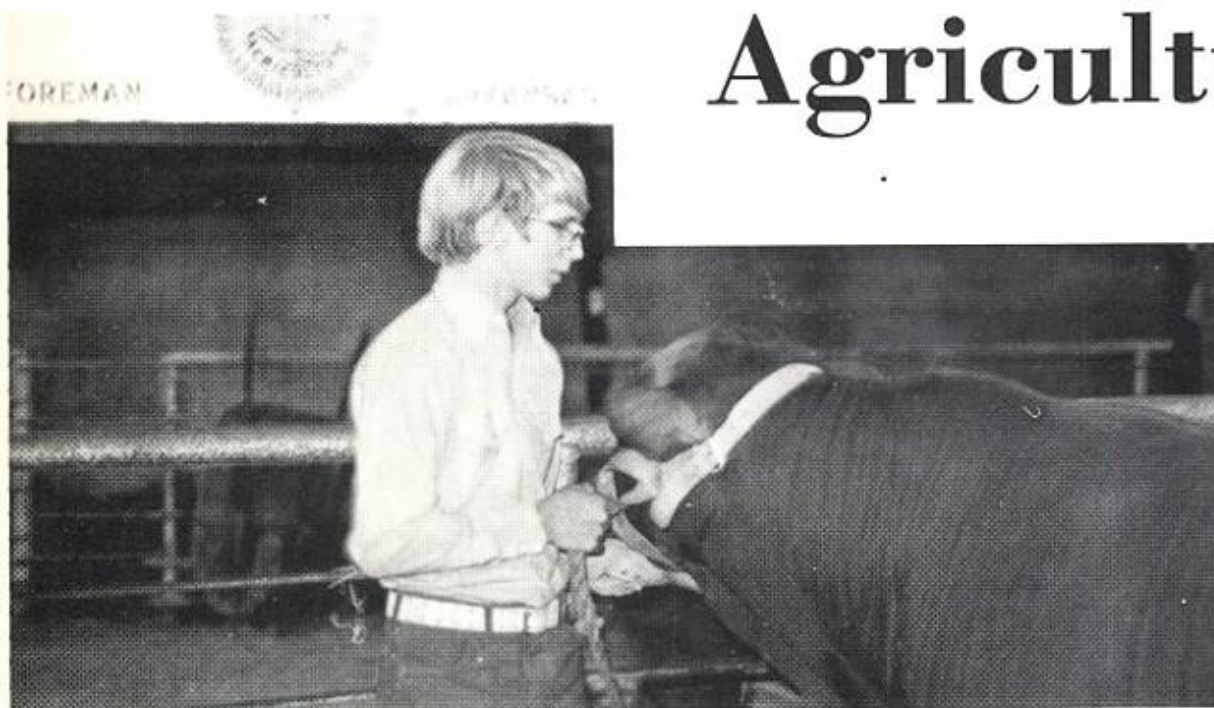

Speech class makes Carolyn and Bonita look so young.

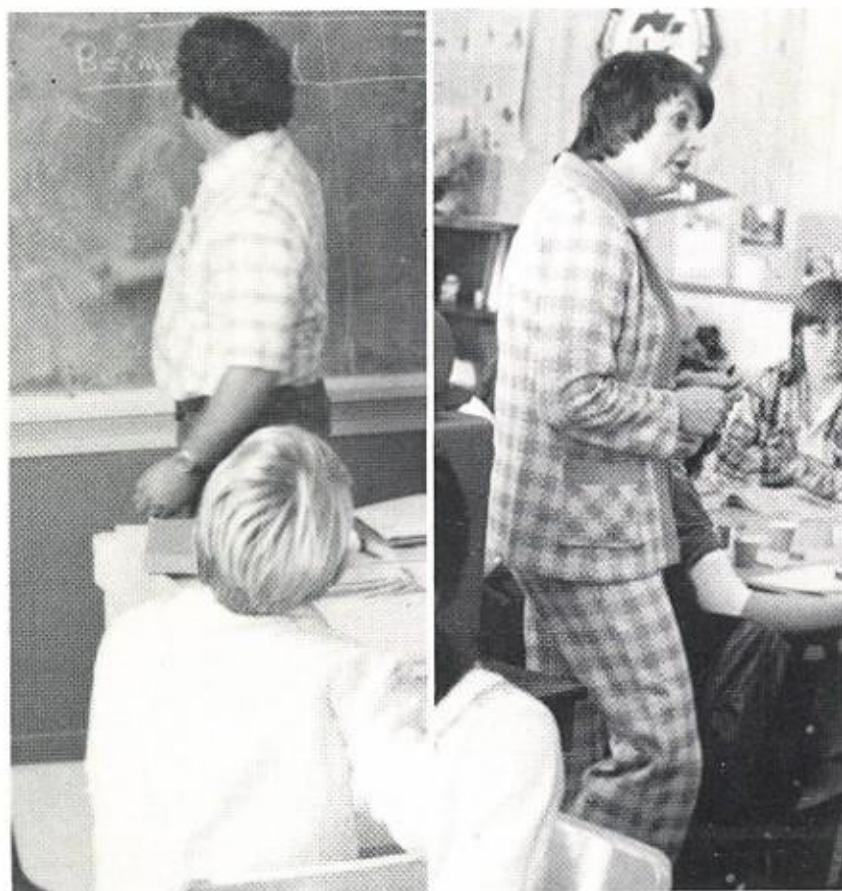

Elvis proves that "black is beautiful."

Home Economics Agriculture

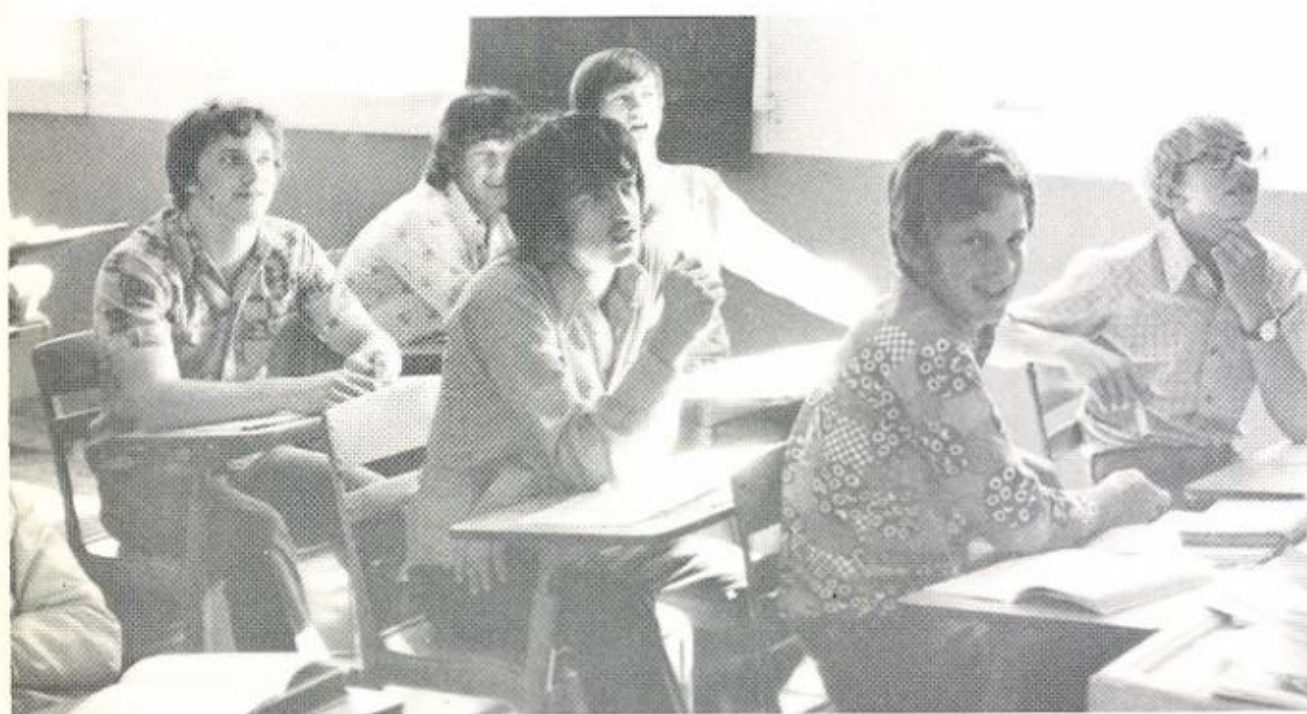

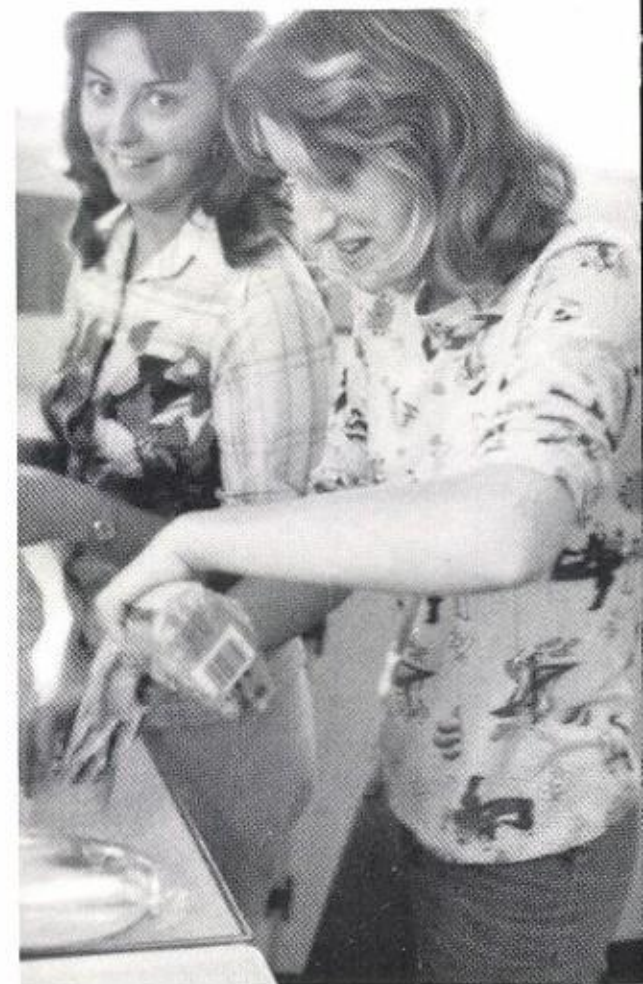

It may just be a Beefmaster, but it won six ribbons.

This year brought many changes in vocational classes. It is not unusual to see girls in Agri. and boys in Home Ec. We are movin' on with equal rights for BOYS AS WELL AS GIRLS at F.H.S.

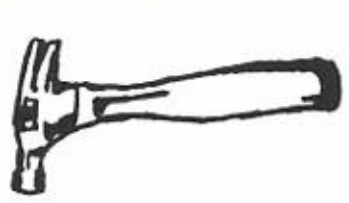

Carolyn isn't sure Cindy's mixture will be cookies.

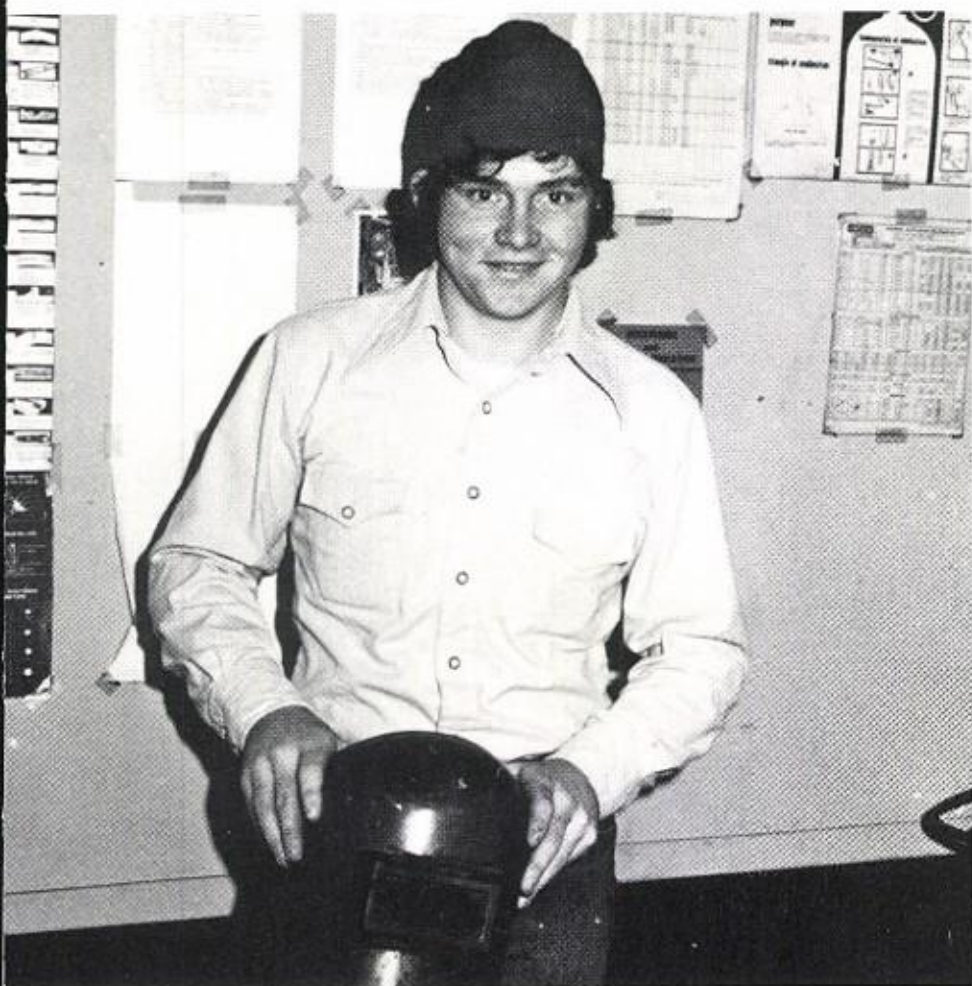

Livestock class has many reactions to Mr. Lairmore's statement.

Pam learns what red, yellow, and blue can do.

The administration at Foreman High School realizes that all students are not academically inclined. Some people would benefit from learning a trade at which they could become employed without sitting for hours in a college classroom. For this reason, our students are now allowed to take advantage of the Texarkana Area Vocational Center. Students leave the FHS campus before noon and travel by bus to the center which provides both faculty and facilities to develop the skilled craftsmen for a wide variety of occupations for the future.

Organizations

Given a chance to expand interests and pleasures, individuals were able to join various FHS clubs to further their hobbies, skills and social development. Helping to better the individual, school, and community, clubs provided worthwhile activities ranging from steak suppers, to car washes. The eleven different clubs offered students a chance to explore special interests.

Activities

Among the chatter between classes, anxiety of waiting for the bell, and cramming for semester exams, we led two separate lives.

One life included mobbing the PLACE and braving our way to the GRAVEL PIT. Extra-curricular activities bound our free time to school after the final bell. Classes provided us with meeting places to talk to our friends and plan our future.

On the serious side, we learned experience and responsibility through our jobs in the community. We spent long hard hours taking notes, reviewing, and studying for tests we dreaded weeks in advance.

Thinking ahead as we planned our future was often pushed aside to make way for doing things we enjoyed much more. Lending a helping hand and working together helped us unify.

Jr. High Hobo Day

The grubby attire of these little creatures is not their usual dress. The rolled up blue jeans, over-sized overalls, and ragged shirts and caps were the features on junior high Hobo Day. Students were not thought odd for dressing this way; instead, they were hauled off to jail for NOT dressing "hobo-ish." Lisa Brown, Cheryl Weed, and Margaret Taaffe were chosen as the raggediest, tackiest dressers.

Bri. enjoys his "hobo juice."

They come in all sizes!

Important business at hand.

Terri helps prepare for the assembly that never was.

Ann assists in Who's Who vote counting.

The 1976-77 Student Council busied itself with activities such as elections and polls - something new for the students. These activities brought to the surface a whole new side of F.H.S., a more intellectual side. Other more enjoyable activities included the steak dinner for the S.C. members and the planning of the Valentine assembly that never materialized. The failure could have been brought about by the fact that the S.C. just didn't "have their hearts in it."

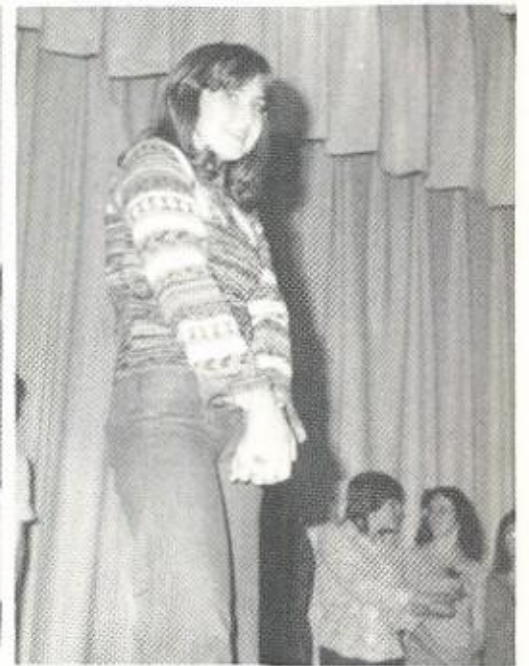

SLAVE DAY

Treassia tells of her many talents.

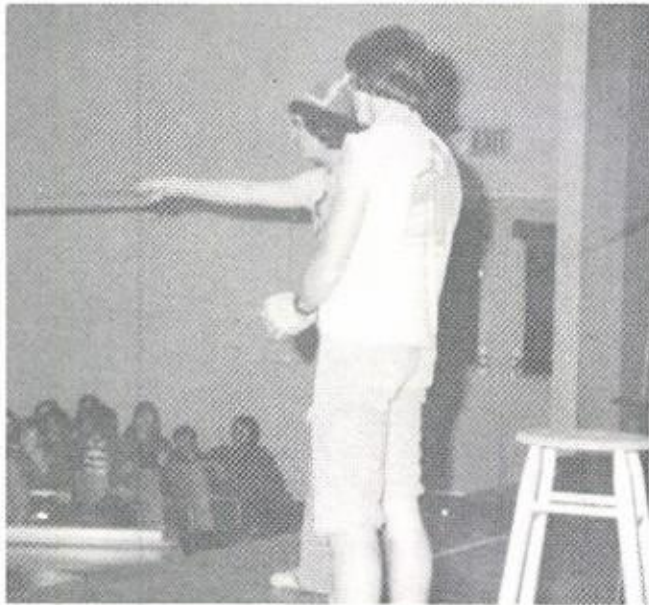

March 22 was just another day at F.H.S. Some students crawled to class while others pushed pencils down the halls with their noses. Some teachers called their students with cries of "Pig Sooie!". Some looked odd in their "high-water" pants and wrong-side-out clothes. No, this was not just any day - it was the FBLA's Slave Day.

Bonita doesn't know why anyone would want to buy her.

"What am I bid for Mr. Wattlington?"

Jay can even sell the blind; that is if her name is Shelly.

Martine says, "Look, Randy, no hands!"

This is the stillest Wayne has been all year.

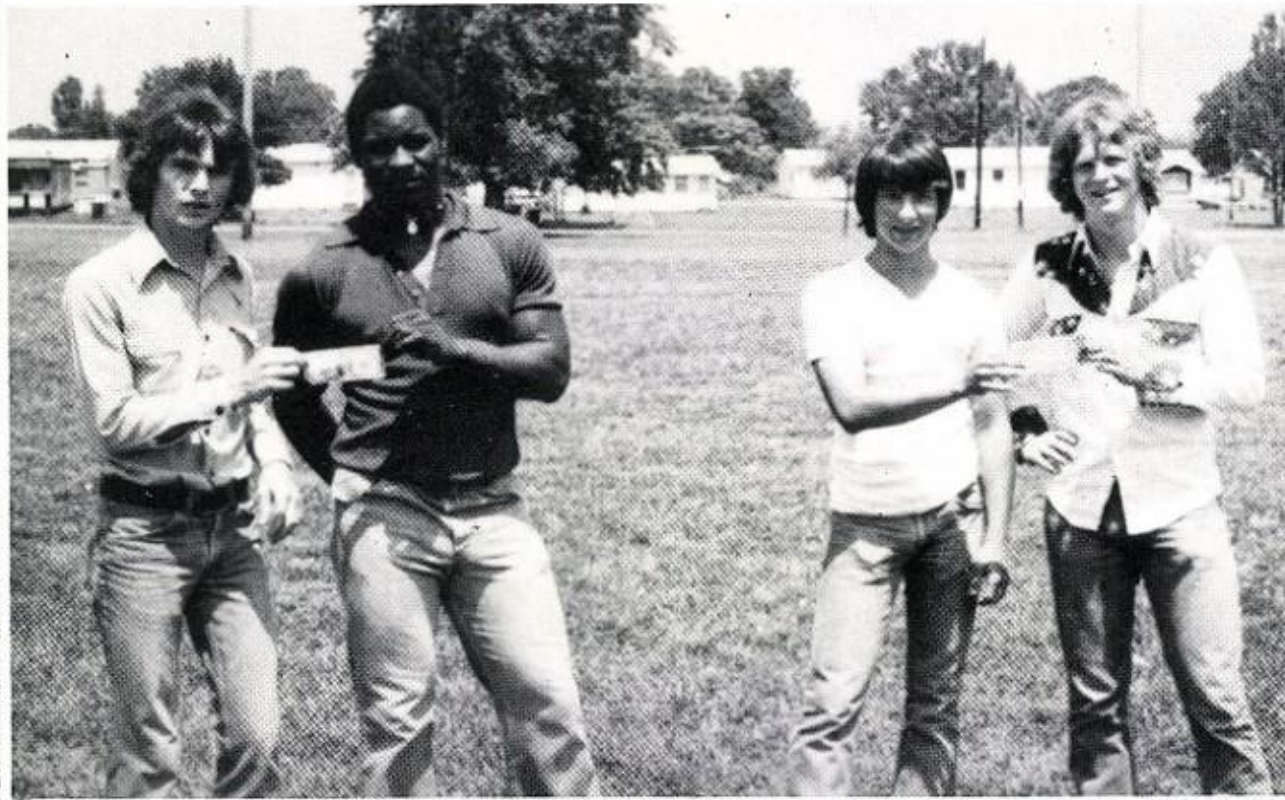

That's the way, Mr. Frazier, call them hogs.

Western Day

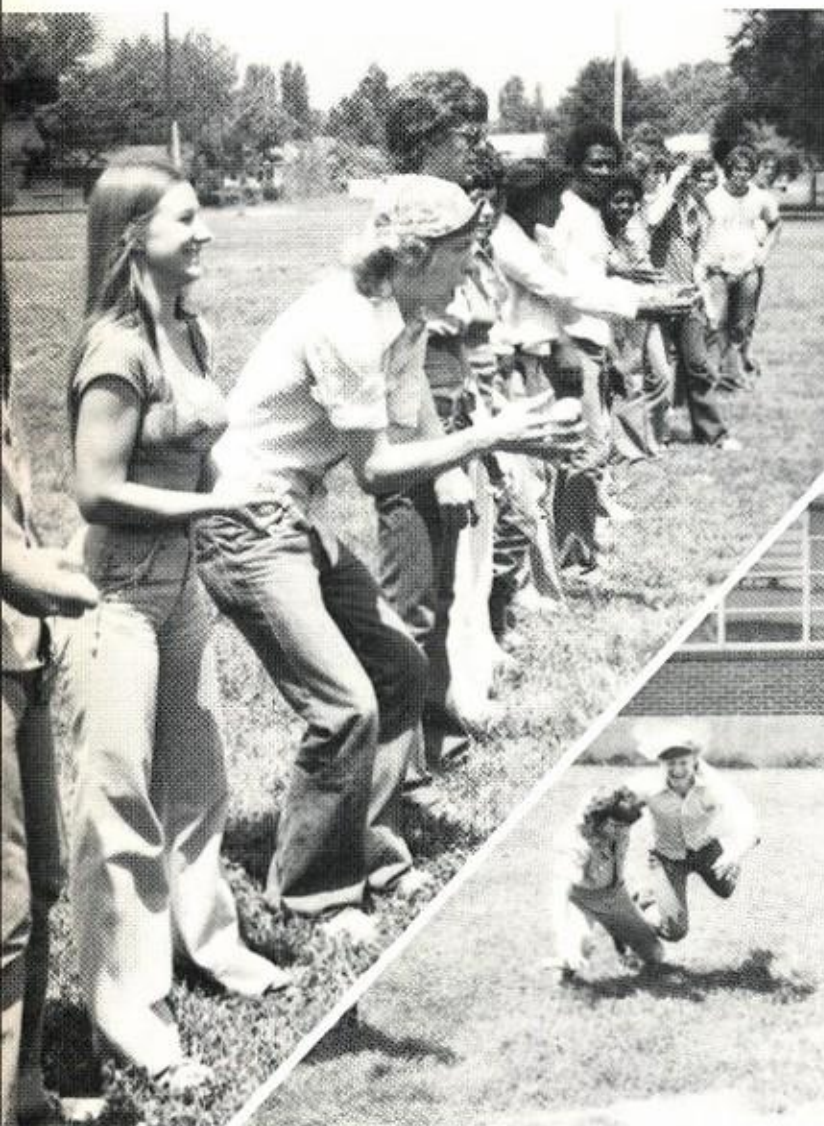

How many school days come around when you can throw an egg at a teacher and get away with it, or run a race with three and a half legs? Well, for one - Western Day - a day when everybody shows a little red around the neck. Between the egg-throwing contest and the three-legged race, a mere spectator wasn't even safe to watch without running the risk of catching an egg up beside the head. Or how about being run over by a two-headed, four-armed, three-legged mongrel with a voice like Wayne Watlington and a face like Mark Bush. It's only once a year and, to quote the loser of the egg-throwing contest, "Look at this slop on my pants."

Lisa and Joan received awards for being "best-dressed cowgirls."

Gene and Jimmy Ray, and Danny and Mark look like happy winners of the egg-throwing contest.

Mark enjoys egg-throwing as well as three-legged races.

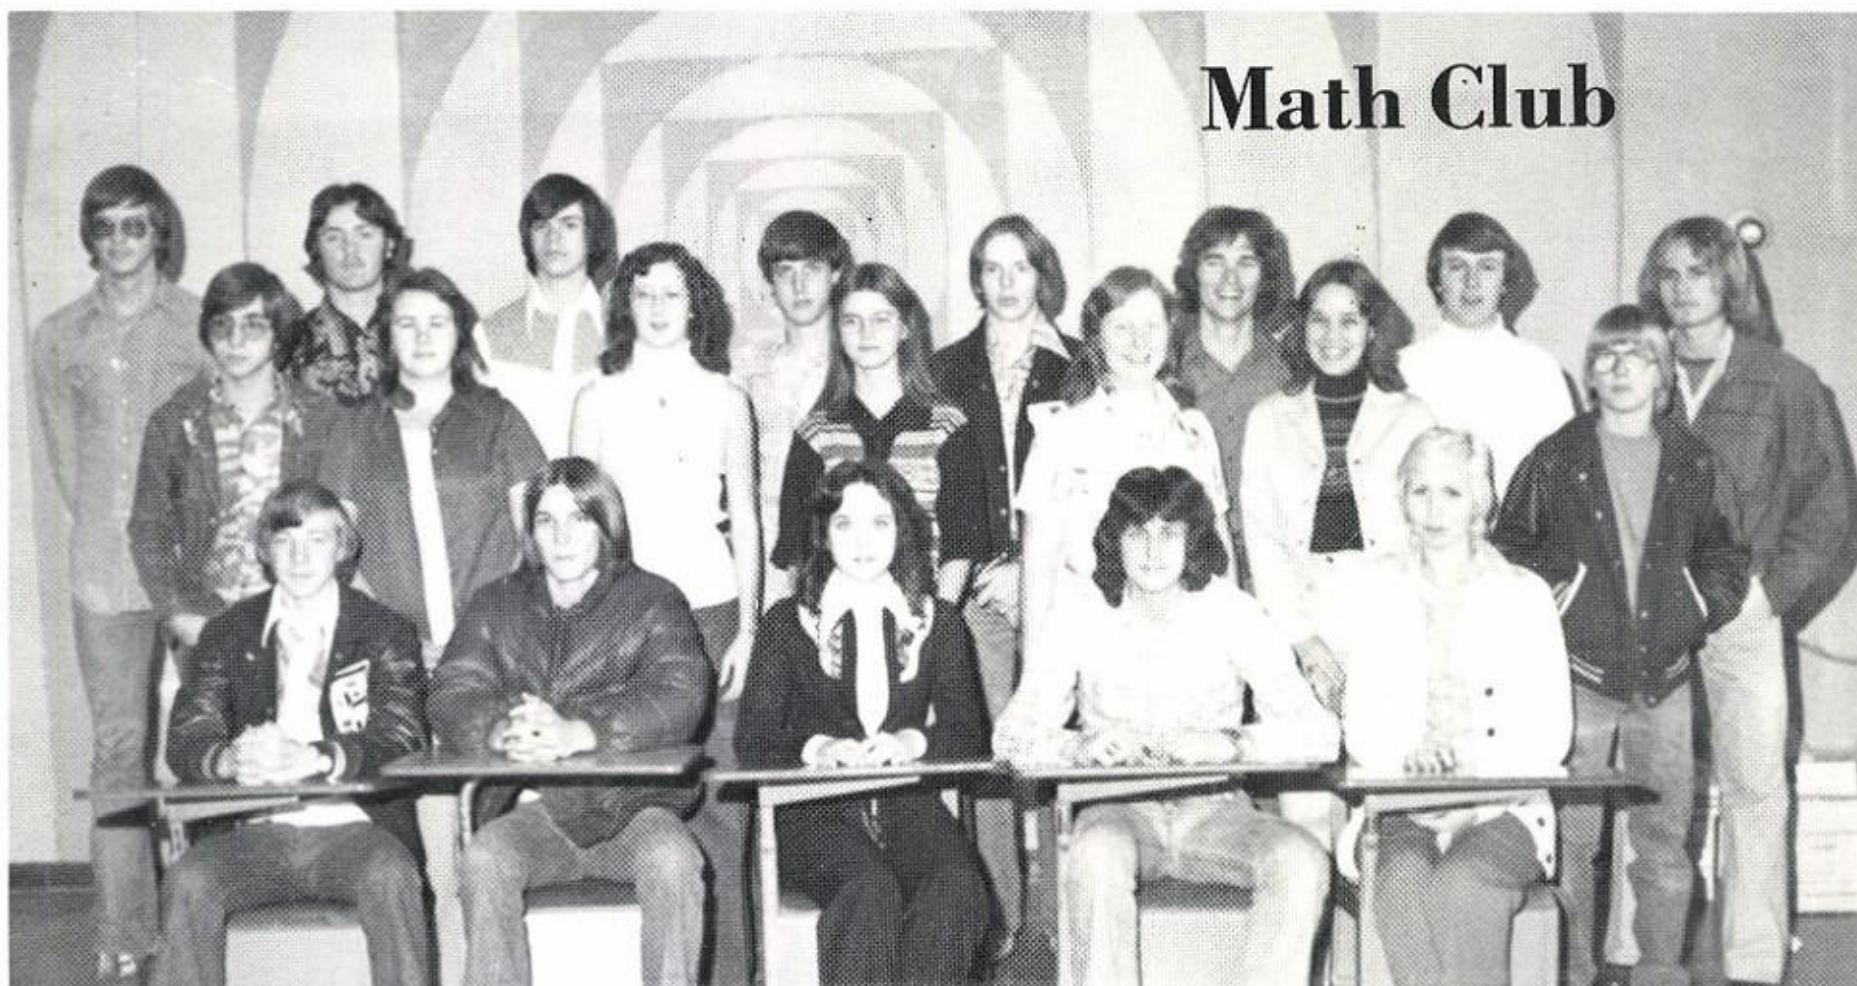

Mr. Frazier says there'll be no more egg throwing for him.

Mike thinks Mike is funny.

FFA

The FFA has really been "on the move" this year. Some of the many activities enjoyed by the "mixed group" included everything from parking cars at the home games to attending the Hope Fair where they judged everything from cattle to sheep . . . The State Fair at Little Rock where they attended the fair and rodeo and saw Lorne Green, better known as Ben

Cartwright . . . and the Fat Stock Show at Fort Worth where they saw Red Stegal and MUCH SNOW!

Many hours of selling popcorn at the ballgames helped finance this year's activities.

If anyone has been truckin' this year, it has been the yearbook staff. The paper staff duties are to make the school paper in addition to their regular course of study. This involves the writing, organizing, typing and drawing of the paper, as Alan and Margie are doing on the left, and the printing and preparation of the final copy, as Loni, Louise, Linda and Mary Kay are doing on the right. Under the guidance of Mrs. Winfrey, this year's paper staff created the "F.H.S. Press" and printed the school news for 1976-77.

Girls' and Boys' State

Two FHS senior girls, Treassia Wright Billingsley and Lynette Ballard, were chosen as Arkansas American Legion Auxillary Girls' State Delegates this year. Also, three FHS senior boys, Jay Newman, Gene Ellis, and Paul Hawkins were selected to attend Bays' State.

The week-long summer programs, designed to inform selected high school students of the structure and operations of our local, state, and national government, was held on the UCA campus in Conway. During the week, patriotism, concern, and love for our country were emphasized. Many prominent men and women including Governor David Pryor spoke to the students at General Meetings. Campaigning for various offices ranging from city councilmen to governor occupied most of the daylight hours. At night and between meetings, the delegates enjoyed parties in their dorms and met many new friends.

The FHS delegates continued to carry out patriotic deeds during the school year by raising and lowering the school flags, presenting the colors at assemblies, and trying to foster patriotism as a whole among the student body.

Students Receive Awards

Jay

Ann

ESSA representatives are two students who represent the ESSA Community Advisory Committee. The representatives sit in on committee meetings and voice the opinions of the students.

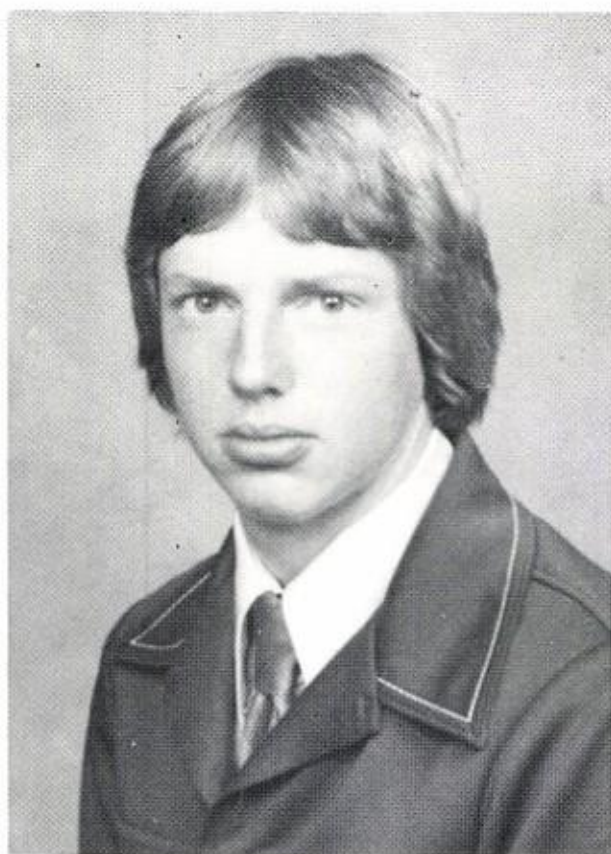

Alan

Alan Gauldin received the award for his outstanding work in designing the '77 yearbook cover. Alan also served as art editor for the yearbook staff.

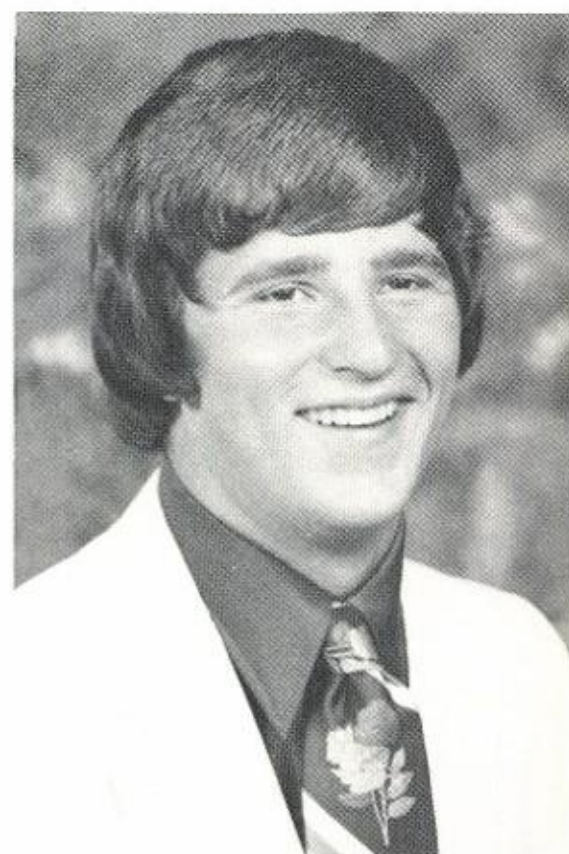

Lynette

Lynette Ballard was presented the DAR Good Citizenship Award by the Paraclifta Chapter of the DAR. Each year a senior is selected for this award on qualifications of leadership, dependability, service, and patriotism.

Randy
Paul

Paul Hawkins and Randy Clevenger earned the highest ranking in the Senior Class in the 1977 General Mills Search for Leadership in Family Living. In recognition for this achievement they were awarded a Certificate of Merit.

How many times have you been sitting in your classroom peacefully dozing when suddenly your nap was disturbed by the sound of the fire alarm? This meant that you had to stand up, close the windows, if you were near them, walk out the front door, in a quick, orderly manner and keep quiet! All of this was to keep you prepared in case of fire, flood, famine, or killer bees.

The students behind these drills are the Foreman Fire Marshals. These students are educated in the practice of avoiding disasters and give their time and effort in these fire drills to help protect our school and our students, and to get out of class.

PROM

Excitement was in the air for days as the Jrs. and Srs. prepared for the prom, decorating, ordering flowers, buying new clothes, inviting dates, etc. The night finally arrived. (Actually it was more than a night - there were early dates for dinner, dancing at the prom, parties, and early breakfasts.) Perhaps this should be called prom weekend instead of prom night.

The 1977 football homecoming was a time to be remembered. On Friday, October 22, the entire campus was alive with students darting back and forth to prepare for the homecoming ceremonies, the parade, the pep rally, the game, and the dance.

The maids and their escorts were presented during the homecoming ceremonies in the high school gymnasium that afternoon while the F.H.S. band supplied a musical accompaniment. After the ceremonies, a parade proceeded from the school to the town square where the F.H.S. cheerleaders led the students in a pep rally. The ceremonies were repeated that evening on the football field before the game and a dance closed the evening.

Jr. High Football

Although the Jr. Gators may not have had much size or experience this year, they did have plenty of spirit and hustle. They always played their best and in the words of their coach, Merrill Mankins,

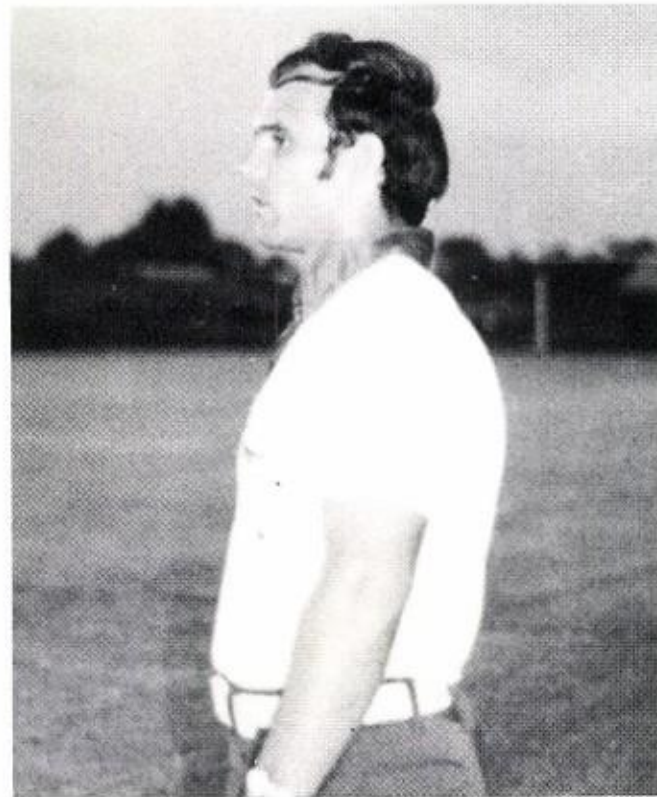

"They were in every game."

With the experience gained this season, they expect an even better one next year.

P.E. classes are designed for those students who wish to stay physically fit and learn various sports without the high level of competition found in intramural athletics. This is one of the most important classes offered; for a healthy body is conducive to a healthy mind. Besides, where else can students learn and have fun at the same time?

Just four more laps.

Although track is one sport which takes a lot of effort and often gets little attention, each boy worked long and hard trying to make the 1977 track season a success . . . and it paid off. With all the difficulties encountered, they came through proudly - never giving up. By the end of school, it was apparent that the GATORS had what it took!

The Senior Girls' Track team had an outstanding first year. A great deal of dedication went into making it, for contrary to popular opinion, you don't just run track. It takes a lot of hard work and long hours to learn how to run, more to get in shape to run, and even more to practice running. In the end it adds up, as the girls will agree: for them it added up to State in seven different events - with a first in one!

OK, Versia, on your mark, get set . . .

Coach Connie Gamble

The Senior Girls Volleyball Team, though new to F.H.S., was quite a success. A good number of girls participated, stayed enthusiastic, and worked hard to become a top-notch team. The athletic boosters are a group of hard working, loyal fans who (without pay) sell calendars, work in and clean concession stands, build field houses, give award banquets, and offer support when needed.

When asked about the band boosters, Mr. Fernero stated that they were hard workers and great supporters, without whom the band could never have functioned.

Jr. High - a time for changing - a time for growing. The four years of Jr. High can really be rough. Students are trapped between the free and easy years of childhood and the frustration that comes with new responsibilities and decisions of growing up. The teachers find themselves battling to cope with students who are in turn battling to cope with themselves! But . . . it's all a part of growing, of learning, and of "movin' on."

After the rough years at Jr. High, everyone should be more mature and able to cope with the problems of life in Sr. High. The help given to the students from the teachers should be appreciated because of its influence on a student's ability to cope with problems in real life . . . especially obeying orders. With all this help graduates should have an advantage when they "move on" into the world.

In a standing-room-only, jam-packed gymnasium, the SENIORS OF 77 finally reached one of their goals - graduation. With mixed emotions, they marched in, took their respective seats, listened to speeches, received awards and diplomas, changed their tassels, and marched out - just as they had seen so many others in the past. However, this graduation was unique! It was special! Why? It was theirs.

CONGRATULATIONS!!!

Don't let summer vacation begin in your house without a teen age telephone

Sure you can work out a traffic system with just one telephone. Or at least you can try. But a separate teen telephone doesn't cost very much. A few baby sitting jobs will pay for it. Their own phone is great for the teens and a welcome relief for their parents. You'll wonder why you didn't O.K. it earlier.
